Buckhorn Range Chapter of Backcountry Horsemen of Washington will enthusiastically welcome author Aarene Storms, creator of Endurance 101 a Gentle Guide to the Sport of Long Distance Riding. Ms. Storms's presentation happens on March 8, 2019 at the Tri-Area Center in Chimacum at 7:00 p.m.

As spring approaches all local equestrians can benefit from Ms. Storms's 20 year experience as an endurance rider. She will cover the importance of conditioning your horse and yourself giving you specific actions to take to make it happen. She will also provide lots of information on the sport of endurance riding generally and what we need to know to get started.

Storms returned to horses as an adult after wasting her teen years becoming educated and employed.

An advocate for junior riders, equestrian trails, and novice endurance horse-and-rider teams, Aarene has written numerous articles for Endurance News and other equestrian publications, as well as writing plenty of articles about teen readers and teen books for a variety of library publications.

Adventures in the saddle and on the ground are documented with tongue firmly-in-cheek at the Haiku Farm blog.
